210-01 PTO as a Government Corporation

RESOLVED, that the American Intellectual Property Law Association (AIPLA) favors establishing the United States Patent and Trademark Office as a government corporation, independent from the Department of Commerce.

(Board of Directors Meeting – October 19, 1991.
Retained by Board of Directors – January 25, 2003, and February 1, 2014.)

210-03 PTO Public Advisory Committees

RESOLVED, that the American Intellectual Property Law Association (AIPLA) favors the appointment to the Public Advisory Committees, as provided in 35 U.S.C. Sec. 5, of individuals who are highly knowledgeable concerning the affairs of the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office (PTO), and specifically, favors the appointment of at least some individuals who practice before the PTO or who are affiliated or employed by entities that practice before the PTO.

(Board of Directors Meeting – January 29, 2000.
Retained by Board of Directors – January 30, 2010.)

214-01 Fee Diversion

RESOLVED, that the American Intellectual Property Law Association (AIPLA) favors in principle that all revenue generated by fees paid by users of the services of the United States Patent and Trademark Office for application processing be made promptly available to the USPTO without limitation to provide such services, and

Specifically, the Association opposes the withholding or diversion of any such revenue to fund any non-USPTO programs.

(Board of Directors Meeting – July 10, 2000.
Retained by Board of Directors – February 5, 2011.)

218-01

Markush Practice

On September 2, 1986, the PTO circulated an informal proposal entitled, "Proposed Approaches to Markush Practice." The proposal was considered by the Chemical Practice Committee. The Board adopted the following resolution recommended by the Committee:

RESOLVED, that the American Intellectual Property Law Association opposes any effort to change the current law or practice as it relates to the option of an application to present and prosecute claims of the Markush type.

(Board of Directors Meeting – October 10, 1986.

Retained by Board of Directors – January 25, 2003, and February 1, 2014.)

218-02

PTO Rules Changes

Requirement to Identify Support for Amendments to Claims

RESOLVED, that the American Intellectual Property Law Association (AIPLA) would oppose, in principle, a requirement that an explanation of support in the disclosure of a patent application for any amendment to a claim shall be applicable to all patent applications.

Make Administrative Procedures and Policies Similar in Reexamination and Reissue Proceedings to the Extent Practicable

RESOLVED, that AIPLA favors, in principle, adoption of similar administrative policies, practices, and procedures for reissue applications and reexamination proceedings to the extent practicable.

(Board of Directors Meeting – October 24, 1996.

Revised and retained by Board of Directors – January 24, 2007.)

220-03

Interference

RESOLVED, that when a paper is filed in an application seeking an interference, the PTO should automatically mark that application file "Special" and act on it promptly until an interference is either declared or finally refused, including cases returned to the Examiner by the Board.

(Board of Directors Meeting – January 27, 1996.

Edited and retained by Board of Directors – January 24, 2007.)

220-14

Interference Proceedings

RESOLVED, that the American Intellectual Property Law Association (hereinafter referred to as “AIPLA”) favors, in principle, the participation of the Solicitor’s Office as an amicus curiae in the court review of any decision by the Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences (hereinafter referred to as “the Board”) in an interference where the decision of the court is likely to affect the institutional interests of the Patent and Trademark Office (“the PTO”); and Specifically, AIPLA favors the amendment of the Board’s Standing Order to provide that each party to court review under either 35 USC § 141 or 35 USC § 146 of a decision by the Board in a patent interference must serve on the Solicitor copies of all substantive papers, subject to any protective orders, that it files in the court on the same date that it files those papers, and AIPLA favors participation of the Solicitor’s Office as an amicus curiae in that court review whenever the decision of the court is likely to affect the institutional interests of the PTO.

(Board of Directors Meeting – February 2, 2011.)

Interference Proceedings

RESOLVED, that the American Intellectual Property Law Association (“AIPLA”) favors, in principle, a change in the metric that the Patent and Trademark Office (hereinafter referred to as “the PTO”) uses to judge the timeliness of dispositions of interferences by the Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences (hereinafter referred to as “the BPAI”); and

Specifically, that AIPLA favors an additional metric to the metric that the PTO currently uses to judge the timeliness of the dispositions of all interferences (namely, that judgment be entered within two years of declaration) whereby credit would be given the BPAI for minimizing the period between the panel hearing on the motions and the decision on the motions.

(Board of Directors Meeting – May 12, 2011.)

230-01

Patent Law – General

Upon the recommendation of the Committee on Relations with the Patent and Trademark Office, the Board adopted the following resolution:

BE IT RESOLVED that the American Intellectual Property Law Association disapproves in principle replacing the present initial pre-issuance examination system with a patent registration system or any other form of incomplete initial examination, either per se or coupled with some other form of post-issuance examination.

This resolution had been suggested after it was learned that the Office of Management and Budget was conducting a thorough study of the Patent Office procedures and management and it is hoped that a special committee of AIPLA members will find an opportunity to discuss with representatives of OMB the need for the retention of the present initial examination system in patent prosecution.

(Board of Directors Meeting – June 11, 1979.

Retained by Board of Directors – January 25, 2003.

Amended and retained by Board of Directors – February 1, 2014.)

230-03

Patent Law – General Legislative Agenda

RESOLVED, that AIPLA supports the principle that the first inventor to file an application for patent containing an adequate disclosure (35 U.S.C. §112) of an invention should have the right to patent the invention and SPECIFICALLY, AIPLA supports such principle as the “best practice” for improving the domestic patent system.

RESOLVED, that AIPLA supports, in principle, the adoption of a grace period in which a disclosure of information anywhere in the world which would otherwise affect the patentability of an invention shall not affect the patentability of an invention claimed in an application where the information was disclosed directly or indirectly by the inventor, or by a third party which obtained the information directly or indirectly from the inventor, during the 12 months preceding the filing date, or where priority is claimed, the priority date of the application.

FURTHER RESOLVED, that until a similar grace period is effective in the patent laws of the member states of the European Patent Convention and in the patent law of Japan, the period of grace shall only apply to disclosures made 12 months preceding the effective filing date in the United States.

RESOLVED, that AIPLA supports, in the context of the adoption of a first-inventor-to-file-system:

- (1) eliminating abandonment as set forth in 35 U.S.C. § 102(c),
- (2) eliminating premature foreign patenting as set forth in 35 U.S.C. § 102(d), and
- (3) substituting for the “in public use or on sale” standard as set forth in 35 U.S.C. § 102(b) the “known or used” standard, i.e., that subject matter that is reasonably and effectively accessible to persons of ordinary skill in the art anywhere in the world qualifies as prior art.

RESOLVED, that AIPLA reaffirms its support, in principle, for permitting an application for patent to be filed by the assignee of the inventor.

RESOLVED, that AIPLA reaffirms its support, in principle, for eliminating the requirement that an application for patent include a disclosure of the “best mode” contemplated by the inventor carrying out the invention.

RESOLVED, that AIPLA reaffirms its support, in principle, for a definition of prior art based prior knowledge, use, or sale that has no geographical restrictions.

RESOLVED, that AIPLA favors, in principle, having a definition of prior art which has no geographical restrictions, i.e., disclosure anywhere in the world which is reasonably and effectively accessible to persons of ordinary skill in the art should be considered as prior art.

RESOLVED, that AIPLA favors, in principle, defining “prior art” to require that, for patents and published patent applications that have a prior art effect from their effective filing date, the prior art effect shall be for the purposes of both novelty and obviousness.

RESOLVED, that AIPLA favors, in principle, defining “prior art” to require that, for patents and published patent applications that have a prior art effect from their filing date, a published international application for patent shall be treated the same as a national application filed in the United States.

RESOLVED, that AIPLA favors, in principle, defining “prior art” to require that no earlier-filed application or patent shall have a prior art effect from its filing or priority date with respect to a later-filed application (or any patent issuing thereon) if the later-filed application or patent names the same inventor or, at the time the later application is filed, is owned by the same person or subject to an obligation of assignment to the same person as the earlier-filed application or patent.

RESOLVED, that AIPLA favors, in principle, expressly codifying that the right to patent is solely the right of the individual(s) who made the invention sought to be patented or the assignee of such individual(s).

RESOLVED, that AIPLA favors, in principle, that if the inventor’s right to patent is expressly codified, section 102(f) of title 35, United States Code, be repealed.

RESOLVED that AIPLA supports in principle, legislation to codify an exemption from infringement under which uses of a claimed invention related to scientific or philosophical inquiry are exempted as acts of infringement, and

SPECIFICALLY, the Association supports legislation providing, inter alia, that acts of infringement shall not extend to making or using patented subject matter to discern or discover:

- (1) the validity of the patent and the scope of protection afforded under the patent;
 - (2) features, properties, inherent characteristics or advantages of the patented subject matter;
 - (3) novel methods of making or using the patented subject matter; and
 - (4) novel alternatives to the patented subject matter, improvements thereto or non-infringing substituted therefore.
- (But see Past Action 230-05, Board of Directors Meeting, March 17, 2005.)

RESOLVED, that AIPLA supports in principle elimination of special exceptions to full publication of pending US patent applications as permitted under the American Inventors Protection Act of 1999, and SPECIFICALLY, AIPLA supports repeal of 35 U.S.C. §122(b)(2)(i)-(v).

RESOLVED, that AIPLA supports in principle that commercial use (including substantial preparations for commercial use) should be recognized as a personal defense to patent infringement, if undertaken in good faith by a person who has reduced the patented invention to practice prior to the effective filing date of a patent, and

SPECIFICALLY, AIPLA supports amendment to the provisions of the AIPA of 1999 providing for such rights to remove restrictions on the enjoyment of such rights inconsistent with this principle.

(Board of Directors – March 18, 2004.

Revised in part by Board of Directors – May 15, 2004, and July 14, 2004.

Retained by Board of Directors – July 15, 2015.)

Patent Law – Experimental Use

RESOLVED, that AIPLA supports, in principle, legislation to codify an exemption from infringement under which uses of a claimed invention related to scientific, research, or experimental inquiries are exempted as acts of infringement, and

SPECIFICALLY, the Association supports legislation providing that acts of infringement shall not extend to making or using patented subject matter solely to discern or discover:

- (1) the validity of the patent and the scope of protection afforded under the patent;
- (2) features, properties, inherent characteristics or advantages of the patented subject matter;
- (3) methods of making or using the patented subject matter; or
- (4) alternatives to the patented subject matter, improvements thereto or substitutes therefore.

(Board of Directors Meeting – March 17, 2005.

Retained by Board of Directors – July 15, 2015.)

230-13

Patent Law – Compulsory License

RESOLVED, that the American Intellectual Property Law Association opposes, in principle, state or territory legislation that would give it the right to grant a compulsory license to a patent to a third party to make, have made, use, sell or import a pharmaceutical patented product within the state or territory.

(Board of Directors Meeting – July 17, 2005.

Retained by Board of Directors – July 15, 2015.)

230-16

Patent Law – General

RESOLVED, that the American Intellectual Property Law Association (AIPLA) favors, in principle, legislation that provides an organized and aggressive solution to address the serious and dangerous effects of domestic and international counterfeiting; and

SPECIFICALLY, AIPLA supports passage of S. 522, (Senators Bayh and Voinovich), 110th Congress, 1st Session (2007), the “Intellectual Property Rights Enforcement Act,” or similar legislation, now pending before the United States Congress.

(Board of Directors Meeting – March 15, 2007.)

230-17

Patent Law – Biologics

RESOLVED, that, in the event Congress creates an abbreviated regulatory approval process for a “follow-on” biological product, the American Intellectual Property Law Association supports, in principle, a patent enforcement mechanism that preserves the value of intellectual property by including:

- (1) timely and confidential information exchange sufficient to allow the reference product holder and third-party patent holders to determine whether the patent holder has a good faith basis to assert a patent infringement claim;
- (2) a streamlined, efficient litigation scheme that encourages resolution of patent infringement claims by the reference product holder as well as third-party patent holders in advance of FDA approval of the follow-on product;
- (3) a corresponding declaratory judgment scheme under which a follow-on product applicant may bring a declaratory judgment action seeking a declaration of non-infringement, invalidity, or unenforceability of patents that it believes in good faith may be asserted against the follow-on product, in the event the patent holder does not bring a timely infringement claim before product launch;
- (4) applicability of the existing law of venue; and
- (5) availability of all remedies, including damages and injunctive relief, in the event that patent infringement is found.

(Board of Directors Meeting – July 10, 2009.)

230-18

International Trade Commission

RESOLVED, that the American Intellectual Property Law Association (“AIPLA”) supports, in principle, amending 19 U.S.C. 1337 (“Section 337”) to grant authority to the U.S. International Trade Commission to issue Limited Exclusion Orders against downstream products of non-parties in Section 337 investigations, provided such non-parties are given notice; and FURTHER RESOLVED, that if such relief is warranted, any implementing legislation or rules must require parties seeking such downstream relief to provide prompt and timely specific notice to affected manufacturers and importers of such downstream products.

(Board of Directors Meeting – May 6, 2010.)

230-19 International Trade Commission

The Board of Directors adopted the following:

That AIPLA take the position that the eBay factors should not apply in Section 337 actions and that the ITC Committee’s white paper be finalized as a position paper, subject to final approval by the Executive Committee;

Further, that AIPLA state there is no need to change the current domestic industry standard at the ITC; and Further, that AIPLA take the position that SEPs should not be categorically excluded from ITC proceedings.

(Board of Directors Meeting – July 11, 2012.)

230-20 Patent Law – Legislation

Resolved that AIPLA supports the passage of H.R. 6621, except for the two provisions as noted above, regarding the GATT-related provisions and the (d)(2) dead zones related to reissues, as currently drafted. The motion was approved unanimously.

Further resolved, AIPLA supports an amendment to correct Section 371 regarding oaths to make specific reference to plant and design patents.

(Board of Directors Meeting – December 12, 2012.)

230-21 Patent Law – Legislation

RESOLVED, that AIPLA opposes enactment of H.R. 845, the “SHIELD Act” (as introduced), as the provisions of the bill (e.g., posting a bond) address perceived abuses in patent litigation by targeting a category of plaintiff rather than by addressing the abusive activity itself, an approach which will prevent some parties from enforcing their valid patent rights.

(Board of Directors Meeting – May 3, 2013.)

230-22

Patent Law – Legislation

RESOLVED, that AIPLA opposes in principle amending 35 U.S.C. § 285 to provide that a court must award attorneys' fees to the prevailing party in every case.

FURTHER RESOLVED, that AIPLA supports in principle amending 35 U.S.C. § 285 to provide that a court may award to the prevailing party reasonable attorneys' fees, unless the position and conduct of the non-prevailing party was objectively reasonable and substantially justified, or exceptional circumstances make such an award unjust.

FURTHER RESOLVED, that AIPLA also supports retaining the provisions of Title 28 governing awards of costs and expenses in their present form.

(Board of Directors Meeting – June 20, 2013.)

230-23

Patent Law - State Demand Letters

RESOLVED, that the American Intellectual Property Law Association (AIPLA) is opposed, in principle, to patent demand letter legislation at the state level which creates non-uniform requirements for demand letters across various jurisdictions and increases compliance costs for legitimate businesses engaged in good-faith licensing and dispute resolution efforts.

FURTHER RESOLVED, AIPLA believes that federal legislation regulating bad faith demand letters should preempt specific state legislation on patent demand letters, except that such legislation should not impact a state's authority to police fraudulent activity under consumer protection laws when warranted.

(Board of Directors Meeting – December 11, 2014.)

Patents/Medical

RESOLVED, that the AIPLA opposes in principle any attempt to restrict patentable subject matter under 35 U.S.C 101, and, specifically, opposes passage of any legislation which would prevent the issuance of any patent on a process for performing a surgical or medical procedure, administering a surgical or medical therapy, or making a medical diagnosis.

(Board of Directors Meeting – July 22, 1995.

Retained as amended by Board of Directors – May 5, 2006.

Retained by Board of Directors – July 13, 2016.)

RESOLVED, that the American Intellectual Property Law Association supports in principle that

- (A) Business method inventions should be protected under the same framework of laws under which other inventions are protected,
- (B) No special test or interpretation of the law should be applied to business method inventions, and
- (C) U.S. inventors of business method innovations should not be substantively or procedurally disadvantaged compared to their foreign competitors by changes in the U.S. patent laws.

(Board of Directors Meeting – May 19, 2000.
Retained by Board of Directors – February 5, 2011.)

RESOLVED, the American Intellectual Property Law Association supports in principle that the provisions of the U.S. patent laws providing for restorations of patent term in the case of products requiring federal pre-marketing regulatory approval should be amended to afford an extension of term of up to 10 years from the pre-restoration expiration date of the patent.

RESOLVED, the American Intellectual Property Law Association supports in principle that the provisions of the U.S. patent laws providing for restorations of patent term in the case of products requiring federal pre-marketing regulatory approval should be amended to afford a maximum post-marketing patent term of 15 years.

RESOLVED, the American Intellectual Property Law Association supports in principle that the provisions of the U.S. patent laws providing for restorations of patent term in the case of products requiring federal pre-marketing regulatory approval should be amended to provide that a single patent can be made the subject of multiple extensions in the case where the patent claims two or more products subject to regulatory approval that are otherwise independently eligible for regulatory approval, provided that:

- (1) each such extension shall afford enforceable rights only with respect to the particular product on which the extension was based and
- (2) each such extension applies from the expiration date of the patent determined without reference to any prior extension based on a regulatory approval.

RESOLVED, the American Intellectual Property Law Association supports in principle that the provisions of the U.S. patent laws providing for restorations of patent term in the case of products requiring federal pre-marketing regulatory approval should be amended to remove the deductions from the regulatory review period attributable to the period before an application for regulatory approval is filed.

RESOLVED, the American Intellectual Property Law Association supports in principle that the provisions of the U.S. patent laws providing for restorations of patent term in the case of products requiring federal pre-marketing regulatory approval should be amended to afford restorations of patent term for agricultural chemicals, including pesticides, herbicides, rodenticides, and the like, on substantially the same basis that other regulated products are afforded restorations of patent term.

(Board of Directors Meeting – February 4, 1995.
Retained in part by Board of Directors – May 13, 2005.
Retained by Board of Directors – July 15, 2015.)

246-02

Oppositions

RESOLVED, that the American Intellectual Property Law Association (AIPLA) supports, in principle, the creation of a post-issuance revocation proceeding in the United States Patent and Trademark Office that would serve as the Office's sole administrative review proceeding for challenging issued patents, would be open to addressing all issues of the validity of a patent, and could be available to challengers throughout the term of a patent, provided that:

- (1) adequate opportunities are provided to challenge issued patents;
- (2) adequate incentives are included to encourage making challenges promptly after the patent issues;
- (3) sufficient mechanisms exist to make this proceeding more efficient and cost effective than litigation;
- (4) sufficient mechanisms exist to prevent undue harassment of patent owners through multiple or concurrent proceedings;
- (5) following full and fair opportunities for such challenges, patent owners can enjoy quiet title to their patents; and
- (6) predicate reforms are concurrently enacted that limit prior art to publicly accessible information through adoption of the first-inventor-to-file principle, repeal the best mode requirement, and limit the unenforceability defense based upon inequitable conduct in patent litigation.

(Board of Directors Meeting – March 15, 2007.)

264-01

Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit

RESOLVED that the American Intellectual Property Law Association opposes, in principle, the requirement that judges of the Federal judicial circuit reside with fifty miles of the District of Columbia, and specifically, that the American Intellectual Property Law Association recommends that Section 102(b) of Public Law 97-164 be repealed.

(Board of Directors Meeting – September 17, 1999.
Retained by Board of Directors – January 30, 2010.)

264-02

Judicial Salaries

RESOLVED, that the American Intellectual Property Law Association favors, in principle, increasing the salaries of United States federal judges to restore their compensation to a level at least commensurate with the increases in the wages of the average American worker since the first comprehensive adjustment of judicial salaries in 1969, and

Specifically, favors H.R. 3753 and S. 1638, 110th Congress.

(Board of Directors Meeting – January 26, 2008.)

266-01

Courts – Protective Orders

RESOLVED, that the America Intellectual Property Law Association is opposed to legislative efforts, such as S. 537 and H.R. 1508, which would limit a judge’s discretion in entering a protective order governing the disclosure of information obtained through discovery, the terms of a settlement agreement, or access to court records in a civil case.

(Board of Directors Meeting – July 16, 2009.)

266-02

Courts – Sanctions

RESOLVED, that the American Intellectual Property Law Association is opposed to H.R. 966, which proposes to revise Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 11 by obligating courts to enter sanctions upon any finding of a Rule 11 violation and removing the current 21-day safe harbor.

(Board of Directors Meeting – September 16, 2011.)

Antitrust

RESOLVED, that the American Intellectual Property Law Association (AIPLA) opposes, in principle, any legislative, judicial or regulatory action that would prevent settlement of litigation or that would characterize such settlements as a per se violation of the antitrust laws, including litigation brought pursuant to the Drug Price Competition and Patent Term Restoration Act of 1984 (the Hatch-Waxman Act) under 35 U.S.C. § 271(e)(2).

RESOLVED, that the American Intellectual Property Law Association (AIPLA) believes that, depending on the facts of a particular case, the settlement of litigation brought pursuant to the Hatch-Waxman Act under 35 U.S.C. § 271(e)(2) may be in the public interest.

RESOLVED, that the American Intellectual Property Law Association (AIPLA) favors, in principle, allowing parties involved in litigation brought pursuant to the Hatch-Waxman Act under 35 U.S.C. § 271(e)(2) to settle such litigation in a manner that satisfies antitrust concerns under the “rule of reason” analysis.

RESOLVED, that the American Intellectual Property Law Association (AIPLA) favors, in principle, the enactment of a legislative framework to facilitate settlement of litigation brought pursuant to the Hatch-Waxman Act under 35 U.S.C. § 271(e)(2) that immunizes the parties from antitrust liability if the settlement is judicially determined to be reasonable.

(Board of Directors Meeting – March 15, 2007.)

272-02 Antitrust

RESOLVED, that the American Intellectual Property Law Association (AIPLA) is opposed, in principle, to any exception to the Noerr-Pennington antitrust exemption for litigation to enforce intellectual property rights that would not require proof that the infringement litigation was objectively baseless; and SPECIFICALLY, AIPLA opposes denying Noerr-Pennington protection to owners of intellectual property rights accused of a pattern or practice of successive filings by applying a standard based solely on subjective factors in the case of multiple similar or related lawsuits, as articulated in cases like USS-POSCO Indus. v. Contra Costa Cty. Bldg. and Constr. Trades Council, 31 F.3d 800 (9th Cir. 1994) and Prime Time 24 Jt. Venture v. NBC, 219 F.3d 92 (2d Cir. 2000).

(Board of Directors Meeting – March 15, 2007.)

272-03 Standards-Setting Organizations

RESOLVED, that the American Intellectual Property Law Association favors the practice by standards-setting organizations (SSOs) of making information relating to the SSOs' standards development as well as their intellectual property rights/licensing and disclosure policies clear and publicly available.

RESOLVED, that AIPLA favors SSOs having the flexibility to formulate their own policies and procedures, and AIPLA does not support legislative, regulatory, judicial, or administrative action that requires all SSOs to adopt a single prescribed intellectual property rights/licensing and disclosure policy.

(Board of Directors Meeting – October 21, 2010.)

274-03

Patent Damages

RESOLVED, that the American Intellectual Property Law Association (AIPLA) supports, in principle, the codification of provisions relating to patent damages that provide in substance the following:

(1) if an apportionment of economic value is necessary to assure that damages based upon a reasonable royalty do not exceed the economic value properly attributable to the use made of the invention, such apportionment shall exclude from the reasonable royalty calculation the economic value shown by the infringer to be attributable to the infringer's incorporation into the infringing product or process of features or improvements, whether or not themselves patented, that contribute economic value to the infringing product or process separately from the economic value properly attributable to the use made of the invention;

(2) where the claimant shows that the use made of the invention is the basis for market demand for an infringing product or process, the royalty may be based upon the entire market value of the products or processes provided to satisfy that demand; and

(3) the court shall identify all factors relevant to the determination of a reasonable royalty, and the court or the jury, as the case may be, shall consider such factors in making the determination.

(Board of Directors Meeting – March 15, 2007.)

300-02

Industrial Designs

WHEREAS, judicial precedent has differentiated between the repair and the reconstruction of patented items, holding that the reconstruction of a patented item constitutes an infringement whereas repair of a licensed item does not infringe, and

WHEREAS, AIPLA believes that the careful judicial distinction between repair and reconstruction is a viable mechanism for evaluating infringement that should be maintained,

THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, that AIPLA opposes, in principle, diminishing the current rights and remedies conferred by the design patent laws; and

FURTHER RESOLVED, specifically, AIPLA opposes H.R. 5638 (Lofgren), 110th Cong., 2nd Session (2008), that removes patent infringement liability for making, using, offering to sell, selling, and importing component parts used to restore another article of manufacture to its original appearance.

(Board of Directors Meeting – July 10, 2008.)

RESOLVED, that the American Intellectual Property Law Association (AIPLA) favors, in principle, legislation to amend the provisions of 35 U.S.C. § 289, 19 U.S.C. § 1595a, and 19 C.F.R. 133 to provide statutory and regulatory authority for the U.S. Customs and Border Protection (CBP) to extend full border enforcement protection to design patents by creating a registry similar to that which currently exists for goods protected by trademarks or copyrights.

RESOLVED, that AIPLA specifically favors amending the provisions of 35 U.S.C. § 289 as follows:

35 U.S.C. § 289. Additional remedies for infringement of design patent

- (a) Whoever during the term of a patent for a design, without license of the owner, (1) applies the patented design, or any colorable imitation thereof, to any article of manufacture for the purpose of sale, or (2) sells or exposes for sale any article of manufacture to which such design or colorable imitation has been applied shall be liable to the owner to the extent of his total profit, but not less than $250, recoverable in any United States district court having jurisdiction of the parties.
- (b) No articles of manufacture bearing the patented design, or any colorable imitation thereof, shall be imported, transshipped or exported without license of the patent owner, and infringing copies shall be subject to seizure, forfeiture and destruction for violation of the customs laws contained in Title 19.
- (c) Nothing in this section shall prevent, lessen, or impeach any other remedy which an owner of an infringed patent has under the provisions of this title, but he shall not twice recover the profit made from the infringement.

RESOLVED, that AIPLA specifically favors amending the provisions of 19 U.S.C. § 1595a (c) as follows:

19 U.S.C. § 1595a. Forfeitures and other penalties

(c) Merchandise introduced contrary to law

TRADEMARKS AND UNFAIR COMPETITION

410-01 Trademark – Prosecution

RESOLVED, that the American Intellectual Property Law Association (AIPLA) believes, in principle, that misstatements in the identification of goods and/or services in filings before the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office occasioned by an honest mistake, carelessness, inadvertence, oversight, language difficulties, misunderstanding of the law, or the like, and not made with an intent to deceive, should not constitute fraud.

(Board of Directors Meeting – May 9, 2007.)

410-02 Trademark – Prosecution

RESOLVED, that the American Intellectual property Law Association (AIPLA) favors, in principle, that a trademark application or registration that contains a misstatement in the identification of goods and/or services occasioned by an honest mistake, carelessness, inadvertence, oversight, language difficulties, misunderstanding of the law, or the like, and not made with an intent to deceive, should be permitted to be amended or restricted under Section 18 of the Lanham Act, 15 U.S.C. § 1068 to amend or delete the excess goods and/or services, and should not result in the entire application being voided or the registration cancelled.

(Board of Directors Meeting – May 9, 2007.)

410-03 Trademark – Prosecution

RESOLVED, that the American Intellectual Property Law Association (AIPLA) believes, in principle, that where a trademark applicant or registrant erroneously states in filings before the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office that it is using the mark in commerce on or in connection with particular goods and/or services, such misstatement alone should not be deemed “material” for purposes of analyzing whether the applicant/registrant committed fraud on the Office if (1) the party was in fact using the mark in commerce on or in connection with other similar or related goods or services identified in the application or registration as of the filing dates for an application under Lanham Act Section 1(a), an affidavit under Lanham Act Section 8, a renewal under Lanham Act Section 9, a Statement of Use, or an Amendment to Allege Use; and (2) the applicant/registrant would have been entitled to a registration covering those other goods or services.

(Board of Directors Meeting – May 9, 2007.)

RESOLVED, that the American Intellectual Property Law Association (“AIPLA”) favors, in principle, revision of the Lanham Act, 15 U.S.C. § 1051, et seq., to provide that a non-functional product configuration or design can be deemed inherently distinctive when the requirements for inherent distinctiveness applied to trade dress are met.

RESOLVED, that the American Intellectual Property Law Association (“AIPLA”) favors amending the Lanham Act by adding the following to Section 45, 15 U.S.C. § 1127:

Non-functional trade dress (including a product configuration or design) which is “inherently distinctive” is registrable under section 2 and protectable under section 43 of this Act. In determining whether a product configuration or design is “inherently distinctive” under this Act, the following factors shall be considered:

- (1) whether the configuration or design is a common basic shape or design;
- (2) whether the configuration or design is unique or unusual in the particular field involved;
- (3) whether the configuration or design is a mere refinement of a commonly-adopted and well-known form of ornamentation for the particular class of goods involved;
- (4) whether the configuration or design is capable of creating a commercial impression distinct from any accompanying words; and
- (5) any other factor which may tend to show that the configuration or design would be inherently recognized by members of the relevant public as an indication of the source of the goods.

RESOLVED, that the American Intellectual Property Law Association (“AIPLA”) favors, in principle, revision of the Lanham Act § 1051, et seq., to provide that the degree to which granting protection would hinder competition shall be considered in determining the functionality of a product feature for which trade dress protection is sought.

RESOLVED, that the American Intellectual Property Law Association (“AIPLA”) favors amending the Lanham Act to add the following to Section 45, 15 U.S.C. § 1127:

The term “functional” means that the matter sought to be protected under this Act is so important for its utilitarian purpose that to afford it protection under this Act would significantly hinder effective competition. In determining whether matter is functional under this Act, the factors to be considered shall include, but not be limited to:

- (1) whether effective alternative designs are available to competitors;
- (2) whether the matter yields a significant utilitarian advantage over alternative designs;
- (3) whether the matter achieves economies in the manufacture or use of the goods or services, reduces their cost, or enhances their quality;
- (4) whether the party seeking to protect the matter has touted its utilitarian advantages; and

(5) whether the matter is or has been claimed in a utility patent or patent application.

Specifically, does not support amending 15 U.S.C. § 1054 of the Lanham Act to overturn the decision of the Second Circuit Court of Appeals in Idaho Potato Commission v. M&M Produce Farm & Sales, 335 F.3d 130 (2d Cir. 2003).

(Board of Directors Meeting – March 17, 2005.
Retained by Board of Directors – July 15, 2015.)

RESOLVED, that the American Intellectual Property Law Association ("AIPPLA") favors, in principle, revision of the Lanham Act, 15 U.S.C. § 1051, et seq., to incorporate provisions that explicitly provide protection for marks that are not used or registered in the United States.

RESOLVED, that AIPPLA favors amending the Lanham Act by amending Sections 2, 43 and 45 to explicitly recognize well-known marks, as follows:

15 USC § 1052 [§ 2] Trademarks registrable on principal register; concurrent registration

No trademark by which the goods of the applicant may be distinguished from the goods of others shall be refused registration on the principal register on account of its nature unless it -

(d) Consists of or comprises a mark which so resembles a mark registered in the Patent and Trademark Office, or a mark or trade name previously used in the United States by another and not abandoned, or constitutes a reproduction, imitation, translation, or transliteration of a well-known mark, so as to be likely, when used on or in connection with the goods of the applicant, to cause confusion, or to cause mistake, or to deceive; . . .

(f) A mark which would be likely to cause dilution by blurring or dilution by tarnishment under section 43(c), or which would be likely to cause confusion, or to cause mistake, or to deceive under section 2(d) in relation to a well-known mark not registered in the Patent and Trademark Office, may be refused registration only pursuant to a proceeding brought under section 13.

(A) is likely to cause confusion, or to cause mistake, or to deceive as to the affiliation, connection, or association of such person with another person or as to the origin, sponsorship, or approval of his or her goods, services, or commercial activities by another person, or

(B) in commercial advertising or promotion, misrepresents the nature characteristics, qualities, or geographic origin of his or her or another person's goods, services, or commercial activities, shall be liable in a civil action by any person who believes that he or she is or is likely to be damaged by such act.

(d) Cyberpiracy prevention

(A) A person shall be liable in a civil action by the owner of a mark, including a well-known mark or a personal name which is protected as a mark under this section, if, without regard to the goods or services of the parties, that person

(i) has a bad faith intent to profit from that mark, well-known mark or personal name which is protected as a mark under this section; and

(ii) registers, traffics in, or uses a domain name that -

(I) in the case of a mark that is distinctive at the time of registration of the domain name, is identical or confusingly similar to that mark;

(II) in the case of a famous mark that is famous at the time of registration of the domain name is identical or confusingly similar to or dilutive of that mark; or

(III) is a trademark, word, or name protected by reason of section 706 of Title 18 or section 220506 of Title 36.

15 USC § 1127 [§ 45] Construction and definition; intent of chapter

The term "well-known mark" means a mark that is well-known to a relevant sector of the public in the United States, regardless of whether such mark has been used in commerce, whether such mark is well-known throughout the United States, or whether such mark is "famous" within the meaning of Section 43(c)(2)(A). In determining whether a mark is well-known, the court may consider all relevant factors, including the following:

(1) the degree of knowledge or recognition of the mark among the relevant sector of the public in the United States;

(2) the duration, extent and geographical area of use of the mark anywhere in the world;

(3) the duration, extent and geographical area of promotion of the mark anywhere in the world;

(4) the duration and geographical area of any registrations, or applications for registration, of the mark anywhere in the world, to the extent that they reflect use or recognition of the mark;

(6) the value associated with the mark.

If the well-known mark is not used in the United States, it must have been used and not abandoned in at least one other country.

425-13Trademark – Counterfeit Goods

WHEREAS, each day thousands of counterfeit products come through the borders and ports of entry of the United States; and

WHEREAS, given the sheer volume of fraudulent products and the alarming sophistication of counterfeiters and pirates, it is often difficult to tell the real from the fake; and

WHEREAS, for many years, the Customs and Border Protection Bureau (“CBP”) of the United States Department of Homeland Security routinely has sought the assistance of trademark and copyright owners to authenticate suspected counterfeit or pirated products detained at the border; and

WHEREAS, after rendering an interpretation of the Trade Secrets Act, the CBP directed field staff in 2008 to redact all identifying markings and codes before sending digital images to rights holders to authenticate products;

RESOLVED, that AIPLA favors, in principle, legislation to clarify the provisions of Section 1905 of Title 18, United States Code, providing that the CBP has the authority to share identifying information in cases involving potential acts of trademark infringement or counterfeiting, copyright piracy or the illegal importation of “circumvention devices” as defined in Section 1201 of Title 17, United States Code, otherwise known as the Digital Millennium Copyright Act; and it is further

RESOLVED, that AIPLA specifically favors passage of the Foreign Counterfeit Prevention Act, H.R. 4216, or similar legislation, providing that it is not a violation of the Trade Secrets Act for CBP officers to provide information and samples of alleged infringing, counterfeit or otherwise pirated goods and circumvention devices to right holders for inspection and evaluation.

(Board of Directors Meeting – May 10, 2012.)

425-14Trademark – Remedies

RESOLVED, that the American Intellectual Property Law Association (“AIPLA”) favors, in principle, legislation to amend the provisions of the Lanham Act relating to awards of actual damages and accountings for unjust enrichment profits for the purposes of clarifying the availability of and prerequisites for such awards in cases arising under that Act; promoting uniformity and predictability in the courts’ application of those provisions; and furthering the policies of that Act of protecting the public against likelihood of confusion, protecting businesses’ investments in trademarks and other commercial indicia from injury, and making trademark infringement and other acts of unfair competition unprofitable to the infringer; and it is further

RESOLVED, that AIPLA specifically favors amendment of the remedial provisions of the Lanham Act for the purpose of effectuating these reforms, as follows:

- To provide that, upon a finding of trademark or service mark infringement a court should award monetary relief measured by:

[i] the infringer's unjust enrichment profits attributable to the infringement and/or;

[ii] the mark owner's actual damages including lost profits on but-for sales, and effect on goodwill and reputation, taking into account factors including, but not limited to, the position of the parties in the marketplace, actual confusion, and the conduct of the infringer, but in no event shall the mark owner be entitled to less than a reasonable royalty for the infringement; and

- To provide that these amendments are not intended to change restrictions on an award of double recovery or otherwise affect the availability of other remedies under existing case law, to the extent not in conflict with the above.

RESOLVED, that the American Intellectual Property Law Association ("AIPLA") favors, in principle, legislation to amend the provisions of the Lanham Act relating to monetary relief for the purposes of clarifying the availability of and prerequisites for awards of such relief in cases arising under that Act; promoting uniformity and predictability in the courts' application of those provisions; and furthering the policies of that Act of protecting the public against likelihood of confusion, protecting businesses' investments in trademarks and other commercial indicia from injury, and making trademark infringement and other acts of unfair competition unprofitable to the infringer; and it is further

RESOLVED, that AIPLA specifically favors amendment of the remedial provisions of the Lanham Act for the purpose of effectuating these reforms, as follows:

- To provide that, upon a finding of willful trademark or service mark infringement and subject to the principles of equity, a court may enhance the amount of any monetary award based on an infringer's unjust enrichment profits attributable to its use of the infringing mark, the mark owner's actual damages measured by lost profits on sales it would have made but for the infringement, and/or a reasonable royalty, up to three times the amount of such award;
- To provide that these amendments are not intended to change restrictions on an award of double recovery or otherwise affect the availability of other remedies under existing case law, to the extent not in conflict with the above.

RESOLVED, that AIPLA favors, in principle, legislation to amend the provisions of the Lanham Act providing for injunctive relief for the purpose of providing that, in trademark or service mark infringement cases where all other prerequisites for a preliminary and/or permanent injunction are met, a finding of probable success on the merits of the mark owner's likelihood of confusion claim (with respect to a preliminary injunction) or a finding of a likelihood of confusion (with respect to a permanent injunction) shall give rise to a rebuttable presumption of irreparable injury sufficient to support entry of an injunction; and it is further

RESOLVED, that AIPLA specifically favors amendment of the remedial provisions of the Lanham Act for the purpose of effectuating these reforms, as follows:

- To provide that, in cases where all other prerequisites for the entry of preliminary and/or permanent injunctive relief for trademark or service mark infringement are met, a finding of probable success on the merits of the mark owner's likelihood of confusion claim (with respect to a preliminary injunction) or a finding of a likelihood of confusion (with respect to a permanent injunction) shall give rise to a rebuttable presumption of irreparable injury sufficient to support entry of an injunction.

Copyright Law/Enforcement

WHEREAS, the American Intellectual Property Law Association (“AIPLA”) believes that online sale of counterfeit and piratical goods harms the investments made by companies in developing their brands and creating works of authorship, and

WHEREAS, AIPLA also believes intellectual property laws should protect consumers to ensure their confidence in the type and quality of goods they purchase online;

THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, that AIPLA favors, in principle, that intellectual property legislation should be enacted which imposes penalties against websites dedicated to the sale of infringing, piratical or counterfeit goods in rem, and also imposes penalties against registrants, owners and operators of such websites, in personam; and

SPECIFICALLY, AIPLA favors passage of S. 968, the Preventing Real Online Threats to Economic Creativity and Theft of Intellectual Property Act, or PROTECT IP Act (Leahy) 112th Cong. 2d Sess. (2011), or similar legislation, which targets the most egregious actors of online infringement, copyright piracy and trademark counterfeiting.

(Board of Directors Meeting – September 16, 2011.)

Copyright Law – Small Claims

WHEREAS, the U.S. Copyright Office is undertaking a study at the request of Congress to assess whether and, if so, how the current legal system hinders or prevents copyright owners from pursuing copyright infringement claims that have a relatively small economic value (“small copyright claims”), and to recommend potential changes in administrative, regulatory, and statutory authority to improve the adjudication of these small copyright claims; and

WHEREAS, the Copyright Office has issued a notice of inquiry seeking public comments by January 16, 2012 on how copyright owners have handled small copyright claims and the obstacles they have encountered, as well as potential alternatives to the current legal system that could better accommodate such claims;

THEREFORE, IT IS RESOLVED, that the AIPLA Board of Directors submit a statement to the Copyright Office regarding small copyright claims that includes the following:

- AIPLA applauds efforts by Congress and the Copyright Office to provide that copyright owners of all kinds—large and small—have the ability to effectively protect their rights in their works and recommends that any legislative changes regarding small copyright claims do no harm to either copyright owners or legitimate users of copyrighted works by, for example, opening them up to unnecessary and unduly burdensome litigation.
- AIPLA opposes one proposal in particular: involving state courts in the adjudication of small copyright claims. Among other reasons, state courts lack expertise in copyright law, and requiring them to hear small copyright claims has the potential to unduly burden state court systems as well as litigants who would have to educate state judges on the relevant law. In addition, authorizing state courts to hear copyright matters risks creating inconsistency in the law and undermines the principles of federal preemption codified in Section 301 of the Copyright Act.

WHEREAS, in recognition of that emerging threat, President Obama's Administration released a 150-page report last year that presented a government-wide strategy designed to reduce trade secret theft by hackers, employees, and companies. In that plan, the Administration has recognized the accelerating pace of economic espionage and trade secret theft against U.S. corporations; and

WHEREAS, in response to a request for public comments for "Trade Secret Theft Strategy Legislative Review" by the U.S. Intellectual Property Enforcement Coordinator last year, AIPLA supported a federal civil remedy for international trade secret misappropriation; and

WHEREAS, the Trade Secret Law Committee and its members have observed an increase in trade secret theft and cybersecurity intrusion, particularly involving foreign actors or conduct that appears to be for the benefit of foreign powers or companies; and

WHEREAS, the Trade Secret Law Committee and its members strongly support efforts to strengthen domestic and foreign trade secret protection; and it is therefore

RESOLVED, that AIPLA favors, in principle, federal legislation creating a civil cause of action to a trade secret owner that does not preempt or undermine existing trade secret remedies provided under state law; and it is further

RESOLVED, that AIPLA specifically favors passage of the Defend Trade Secrets Act of 2014, S-2267, or similar legislation, amending the provisions of Section 1836 of title 18, United States Code, to create a civil cause of action to a trade secret owner; and it is further

Specifically, AIPLA supports amending Article 35 of the Japan Patent Act to provide that remuneration to an employee, who has assigned to his/her employer ownership of and the right to obtain a patent on an invention made in the course of his/her employment, shall be governed by an enforceable employment or other applicable contract entered by the employee and employer, and any service regulations or other stipulations furnished by the employer to the employee expect in cases of fraud or improper coercion.

- h) Reduces the cost to users of filing an international application.

RESOLVED, AIPLA favors, in principle, the accommodation of electronic filing of international applications for patent, and specifically favors a system that insures maintenance of and accessibility to electronic file histories sufficient to support future requirements of users for a period not less than the 30 years required by the present rules for paper file histories.

702-12 Patent Cooperation Treaty

RESOLVED, that AIPLA favors, in principle, expanding the publicly available and easily accessible information regarding entry into the national/regional stage from international (PCT) patent applications to include information for all treaty members; and

Specifically, supports (1) requiring all elected and designated Offices to timely report such information to the WIPO International Bureau in a complete and uniform manner, and (2) requesting that the International Bureau, in addition to regularly tabulating and publishing the reported information, strongly encourage non-compliant Offices to fully comply with the established reporting requirements.

Patent Cooperation Treaty

RESOLVED, that the American Intellectual Property Law Association supports, in principle, the use of the Patent Cooperation Treaty, and supports the USPTO bringing the quality of PCT processing to world-class level;

Specifically, AIPLA supports the USPTO processing of papers for entry into the U.S. national stage as promptly as the USPTO processes the filing of ordinary domestic (111(a)) patent applications.

RESOLVED, that the American Intellectual Property Law Association supports, in principle, the use of the Patent Cooperation Treaty, and supports the USPTO bringing the quality of PCT processing to world-class level, and Specifically, AIPLA supports the USPTO more easily facilitating compliance with 37 CFR section 1.496 which provides for "out of turn" examination of applications which the USPTO has treated favorably in the international stage; and further supports the USPTO implementing its examiner docketing system in such a way as to flag such "out of turn" applications to the Examiner so that the Examiner will know to take such applications "out of turn." AIPLA also supports the USPTO making such "flags" visible to the applicant in the Private PAIR system.

705-06

Harmonization

1. First to File vs. First to Invent:

AIPLA POSITION: AIPLA believes that the first to file standard is the best practice for a harmonized patent system.

Rationale: AIPLA has previously supported first to file in the context of a balanced overall harmonized patent system, and continues to be supportive of first to file in that context. Indeed, the significant changes in the global patent systems, via the URAA, AIPA, and PLT have significantly increased the desirability of a first to file system in the US.

Changes in the US, including the ability to file a provisional application quickly and inexpensively with a minimum of formalities, and the complex, global nature of inventorship proofs, make first to file an imperative for a truly harmonized and balanced patent system.

2. Patentable Subject Matter:

AIPLA POSITION: AIPLA supports a patent harmonization treaty that would provide patent eligibility for all subject matter that can be shown to provide a “useful, concrete and tangible result,” but does not support any requirement for patent-eligible subject matter to have a “technical effect” or reside in a field of “technology.” This would, in fact, be essentially retaining the standard set forth in 35 USC 101.

Rationale: As technology has progressed into previously uncharted areas, the US patent system has been the incubator for groundbreaking means to provide incentives for innovation, ahead of other highly developed patent systems in, e.g., Europe or Japan. Many of the advances in biotechnology, computer software, and business methods do not fall into a particular technical fields, nor can they always be categorized by traditional notions relating to “technical effect” or “industrial applicability” (see also questions 4 and 6). The flexible US standard was the first to provide protection in these important areas.

3. Best Mode Requirement:

AIPLA POSITION: AIPLA supports a treaty provision which would cause the US to remove the best mode requirement. No justification exists to retain this provision, which has evolved into a requirement to disclose the personal contemplations of the inventor, rather than a means to insure that the invention is effectively disclosed to the public. It creates an unnecessary target in litigation and would disadvantage inventors in the U.S. and other countries that provide for extensive discovery.

Rationale: See Glaxo Inc. v. Novopharm Ltd., 34 U.S.P.Q.2d 1565, 52 F.3d 1043 (Fed. Cir. 1995), in which the court noted that the best mode "belongs" to the inventor. Little justification would seem to exist to retain this provision, which in the end only becomes fodder for litigation, and does little to enhance the objective assessment of the completeness of the description of the invention.

4. Identification of Technical Fields:

AIPLA POSITION: AIPLA supports a harmonization treaty where the identification of technical fields is not required.

Rationale: As technology has progressed into previously uncharted areas, the US patent system has been the incubator for groundbreaking means to provide incentives for innovation, ahead of other highly developed patent systems in, e.g., Europe or Japan. Many of the advances in biotechnology, computer software, and business methods do not fall into a particular technical field, nor can they always be categorized by traditional notions relating to "technical effect" or "industrial applicability," yet they are clearly worthy of patent protection. (See also questions 2 and 6).

5. PCT Unity of Invention Standard:

AIPLA POSITION: AIPLA supports a "unity of invention" standard, similar to the PCT, for examination of patents under a patent harmonization treaty. At the same time, no patent should be invalidated on the basis of a later determination of a lack of unity.

Rationale: The US is alone in its restrictive practices regarding unity of invention. The unity of invention standard as applied in the PCT has proven to be an effective global standard for patent examination. Indeed, as a result of the Caterpillar decision, the US was required to use the broader PCT standard for the national phase of PCT cases designating the US. Applicants have chosen to enter the US via the PCT. Thus, the US is already using this standard for some applications. Of course, the protective features of 35 USC 121, which prohibit the invalidation of patents which may later be determined to include more than one invention, should remain in place in order not to work an unfairness to applicants in the event of inconsistent application of the standard.

6. Utility vs. Industrial Applicability:

AIPLA POSITION: AIPLA supports a harmonization treaty containing a utility, rather than industrial applicability, provision.

Rationale: The utility requirement in the United States holding that the invention must be specific, substantial and credible should be followed to allow the patenting of any invention which is currently and practically useful, unless such use is for an insubstantial purpose or effect. Certain restrictions found in some patent systems denying patentability to specific medical treatments and therapies are too narrow. Further, as noted above in relation to items 2 and 6, as technology has progressed into previously uncharted areas, the US patent system has been the incubator for groundbreaking means to provide incentives for innovation, ahead of other highly developed patent systems in, e.g., Europe or Japan. Many of the advances in biotechnology, computer software, and business methods do not fall into a particular technical field, nor can they always be categorized by traditional notions relating to “technical effect” or “industrial applicability.”

7. Effective Date of Prior Art- 35 USC 102(e) and In re Hilmer:

AIPLA POSITION: AIPLA supports a harmonized patent treaty which would provide that all patents or published applications have a prior art effect from their global priority date.

Rationale: The unique US provision providing disparate treatment, in terms of the prior art effect, of applications filed under the Paris convention outside the US compared to applications filed in the US, even including PCT applications designating the US, has been a source of friction with our trading partners for years. No justification for retaining this provision exists, particularly under a first to file system.

8. Use of Prior Filed, Later Published Applications as Prior Art:

AIPLA POSITION: AIPLA supports a treaty providing that the effective global priority date may be used for purposes of both novelty and obviousness.

Rationale: The needs for certainty and uniformity in a truly harmonized patent system dictate unified treatment of prior art. No justification exists to allow minor overlapping variations on patented inventions filed by the same or different applicants. In addition, while it is appropriate to take into account the possibility of applicant’s own prior unpublished disclosure being used against an applicant, a consensus has not been established on how to best address this possibility.

9. Grace Period:

AIPLA POSITION: AIPLA supports a grace period that is personal, i.e., which covers pre-filing disclosures made by or on behalf of the applicant, thereby providing appropriate safeguards to applicants, while retaining an appropriate level of certainty and fairness to the public.

Rationale: While the certainty of an absolute novelty system is urged by some of our trading partners, most systems have at least some saving provisions in place to prevent rank unfairness to applicants engendered by inadvertent or even unauthorized disclosures emanating from the inventors. At the same time, retention of the US one year grace period for all disclosures in a first to file world would add unacceptable levels of uncertainty and complexity, even preventing someone from having the ability to publish their development and dedicate their invention to the public.

10. Geographic Restrictions on Prior Art:

AIPLA POSITION: AIPLA supports a treaty having a definition of prior art which has no geographical restrictions, i.e., disclosure anywhere in the world which is reasonably accessible to the public should be considered as prior art.

Rationale: In the age of the internet, information that is reasonably accessible to the public anywhere is available to the public globally. Thus, no justification exists to geographically limit prior art.

11. Loss of Rights Provisions- 35 USC 102(c); 102(d) and Public Use and On Sale Bar:

AIPLA POSITION: AIPLA supports a treaty which would eliminate the loss of rights dictated under section 35 USC 102(b), abandonment under section 102(c) and premature foreign patenting under section 102(d).

Rationale: As a corollary to the rationale in 10, to the extent something is not reasonably publicly accessible to one of ordinary skill in the art, no justification exists to deny a patent.

12. Use of Multiple References for Novelty Rejections:

AIPLA POSITION: AIPLA favors a treaty where a novelty rejection must be based on a single reference. Additional references or extrinsic evidence should only be used to interpret the disclosure of the primary reference.

Rationale: Most patent systems employ a novelty standard which requires the use of only one reference. The harmonization treaty should retain this standard, and should narrowly prescribe conditions in which anything beyond the primary reference can be consulted.

13. Obviousness a la Graham v. John Deere vs. Problem Solution:

AIPLA POSITION: AIPLA believes that the Graham v. John Deere type obviousness determination is the preferable approach in a global harmonization treaty, and believes that the European Patent Office “problem-solution” approach is unacceptable as in inflexible, unworkable solution.

Rationale: The US provision regarding obviousness is the fairest to applicants, providing an analysis of the invention in the context of the art. The problem solution approach is highly inflexible, lead to extremely artificial definitions of “problems” solved, rather than focusing on the motivation of a person of skill in the field, the latter being more consistent with the purposes of the patent system.

The problem-solution approach requires that each claim solves the problem described, such that a claim drafted in a way that does not solve the described problem would not be patentable. This approach in essence limits the inventive step analysis to a showing of unexpected results, which is only one of the Graham v. John Deere factors. Further, an applicant faced with an obviousness/inventive step rejection where problem-solution approach is the standard, would be often required to produce experimental data showing that the described problem is solved by the invention, which data would otherwise be unnecessary to illustrate the invention. Moreover, the obviousness/lack of inventive step rejection may arise long after the inventor has moved onto other projects. Thus, to require development of new experimental data at the later date could place an unfair burden on the inventor in terms of additional expense to run experiments.

Additionally, under U.S. law, the recognition of a nonobvious problem (even with an obvious solution) can be the basis of patentability, while the EPO does not appear to recognize this as inventive contribution. Finally the EPO appears to want an improvement over the prior art (the old German influence) on which to predicate patentability. Again, under U.S. laws, any nonobvious solution, even if inferior to prior solutions, can be patentable.

14. Multiple Dependent Claim Practice:

AIPLA POSITION: AIPLA supports any procedure that would allow for the simple and inexpensive drafting and prosecution of claims and thus would support a treaty that would allow multiple dependent claims that depend from other multiple dependent claims, so long as it is clear that any multiple dependent claim should be construed to include all limitations of the claims from which it depends.

Rationale: AIPLA believes that this matter should be addressed in the regulations, not the treaty. Applicants should have substantial flexibility in pointing out what they regard as their invention, but examination offices need reasonable safeguards to address abuses that effectively diminish the quality of examination.

15. Claim Interpretation: Peripheral vs. Central Claiming:

AIPLA POSITION: AIPLA supports the approach that the language of the claim should be the exclusive measure of the legal rights under the patent for literal infringement.

16. Doctrine of Equivalents:

AIPLA POSITION: AIPLA supports an approach that allows for a Doctrine of Equivalents that provides a fair balance between the rights of patent owners and third parties.

Rationale: Although the Doctrine of Equivalents is interpreted under national laws, it is important that any harmonization treaty specifically allow for the use of a standard that does not unduly restrict the claims to a narrow literal construction. On the other hand, the treaty should also require that the claims are not to be viewed as mere suggestions or guidelines on defining the invention.

17. Assignee Filing:

AIPLA POSITION: AIPLA favors a system in which the patent application is filed by the real party in interest, whether that party is the individual inventor, a group of joint inventors or the assignee of the patent.

Harmonization

RESOLVED, That the American Intellectual Property Law Association supports the principle of a balanced and harmonized worldwide patent system, and in order to clarify and update its positions on the topic, past actions of the Board of Directors numbers 218-1 (Board of Directors Meeting January 25, 1992), 218-2 (Board of Directors Meeting May 15, 1992), 705-1 (Board of Directors Meeting October 24, 1984), 705-2 (Board of Directors Meeting May 6, 1988), 705-4 (Board of Directors Meeting October 19, 1990), 705-5 (Board of Directors Meeting May 3, 1991), 705-6 (Board of Directors Meeting October 19, 1991), 705-7 (Board of Directors Meeting January 25, 1992), 705-8 (Board of Directors Meeting May 15, 1992), 705-10 (Board of Directors Meeting December 10, 1992), 705-11 (Board of Directors Meeting January 30, 1993), 705-12 (Board of Directors Meeting February 22, 1994), 705-14 (Board of Directors Meeting February 22, 1994), 705-15 (Board of Directors Meeting July 22, 1995) and 705-18 (Board of Directors Meeting October 26, 1996) are retired and the following actions are substituted therefor:

Harmonization/First-to-File

RESOLVED, that, in the event the United States changes its patent laws to award patents based upon the "first-to-file" system, that the American Intellectual Property Law Association supports in principle the enactment, as a unitary package, the following collection of essential principles–

- (1) Proofs of pre-filing invention dates should be barred. In addition to a "first-to-file" rule to be mandated in priority contests, that part of the "grace period" involving prior-filed, post-invention date subject matter should be eliminated.
- (2) "Prior art" as used to establish anticipation and obviousness should be expressly defined and limited to non-secret subject matter. Prior art should consist to pre-filing patents and publications (appearing anywhere in the world) and pre-filing public knowledge or public use (occurring in the United States.)
- (3) "Foreign patenting," "abandonment," and "prior invention" bars to patenting should be removed. Bars to patent set forth in §§102(c), 102(d) and 102(g) should be removed.
- (4) Non-obviousness criterion for patentability should be unchanged.

(5) Derivation bar (originality requirement) should be maintained. First inventor to file, not merely first-to-file should be entitled to a patent.

(6) Nature of the novelty bar should remain unchanged, i.e., be limited to subject matter identically disclosed or described in a single reference. "Anticipation" should be interpreted as under existing case law.

(7) Derivation bar and secret non-experimental use or on sale bars should continue to include "obviousness" considerations. These "right to patent" bars should extend to subject matter that is the same as or an obvious variant of the subject matter that is derived, or used or sold.

(8) "Grace period" with respect to "self-created" prior art should be maintained. The inventor's own activities should not constitute prior art during a one-year grace period against the inventor.

(9) Prior user rights should operate as a complete defense to infringement, being available to persons making good faith, pre-filing commercial use or sale of patented invention in the United States. Such rights should be (1) personal, assignable with entire business, (2) available whenever effective and serious preparations for use or sale have taken place in the United States before filing, (3) based solely on activity in the United States, and (4) limited in scope to the subject matter of the pre-filing activity. Any requirement for "good faith" on the part of the prior user should be satisfied where the user comes into possession of the subject matter by legitimate means and does not make a prohibited use of the subject matter. The rights should not otherwise be restricted, i.e., by quantitative means or by the imposition of any obligation to the patentee.

Harmonization

A proposed Resolution on Harmonization of Patent Law issues was sent to the membership for vote. Approximately 700 members voted on the Resolution; 75% in favor and 25% opposed. The Resolution was approved by the Board and follows:

RESOLVED that the American Intellectual Property Law Association favors, in principle, international harmonization of patent laws to achieve more uniform treatment and results for patent applicants throughout the global marketplace and recognizes that to achieve harmonization, the U.S. would need to change its laws to (i) a first-to-file system for determining priority between more than one application to the same but independently created invention and (ii) give prior art effect to an application subsequently published as an application or granted as a patent as of its earliest filing or priority date provided that the following provisions which benefit U.S. applicants are accepted by other countries:

1. An effective grace period of one year applicable to public disclosures by the inventor, third parties who obtained information directly or indirectly from the inventor, or successors in title to the inventor, which grace period is not subject to dilution by prior user rights;
2. Applications may be filed in any language subject to submission of a translation within two months, which translation may be corrected at any time during pendency or subsequently as a granted patent provided that error may be demonstrated with reference to the original nonofficial language filing or a priority filing in another country;
3. Countries providing search and examination of patent applications should be required to do so with reasonable dispatch to obtain clarification of rights in a reasonable time period with every effort made to produce a search at the time of first publication, to begin examination no later than three years after filing and exert its best efforts to complete examination no later than five years from filing date;
4. Opposition or revocation procedures should not be available before patent grant so as not to delay the granting of a patent; and
5. An effective scope of protection will be provided by extending protection to reasonable equivalents as determined at the time of infringement and not limiting claims by detailed features of the described embodiments not contained in the claims.

705-10

Harmonization

RESOLVED the American Intellectual Property Law Association supports in principle:

- a) limiting to a minimum the optional provisions of the Patent Law Treaty (PLT) in order to assure that the substantive patent law provisions, filing requirements and patent office procedures are made uniform among all adherents to the PLT, and
- b) providing for globalized publicly accessible prior art in the patent law amendments implementing the PLT.

705-11

Harmonization

RESOLVED, that the American Intellectual Property Law Association favors in principle:

As a first step toward harmonization and enhanced efficiency, the adoption by patent offices of a common patent application format for a global patent application so that conforming applications (i) can be filed, preferably electronically, in any patent office without the need for any change in the submitted application to accommodate national/regional rules, and (ii) aid in facilitating machine translation of the applications.

705-12

Harmonization

RESOLVED, that the American Intellectual Property Law Association (AIPLA) favors, in principle, patent offices developing mechanisms for electronic exchange of priority documents, and devising electronic procedures for applicants to authorize and request the exchanges of priority documents; and SPECIFICALLY, AIPLA supports a bilateral agreement between the USPTO and WIPO for free-of-charge electronic exchange of certified copies of priority documents between the two offices.

(Board of Directors Meeting – March 15, 2007.)

705-13

Patent Law Treaty

RESOLVED, that the American Intellectual Property Law Association (AIPLA) favors, in principle, that implementation of the Patent Law Treaty (Geneva 2000) (“PLT”) not reduce or eliminate existing rights or relief under US Patent Law; and

SPECIFICALLY, that AIPLA favors that any legislative action to implement the PLT makes it clear that the “unintentional delay” standard for granting an extension of time for a claim of priority under 35 USC 119(a) and (e)(1), and 35 USC 365(b) be at least as broad as the current standard for the revival of unintentionally abandoned patent applications under 37 CFR 1.137(b);

SPECIFICALLY, that AIPLA favors that any legislative action to implement the PLT allow an application that is filed without claims to be accorded a filing date;

SPECIFICALLY, that AIPLA favors that any legislative action to implement the PLT allow an application that includes the specification of another application by reference, without further disclosure at initial filing, to be accorded a filing date;

SPECIFICALLY, that AIPLA favors that any legislative action to implement the PLT provide for reinstatement by petition for unintentional abandonment of an application by failure to timely pay an issue fee;

SPECIFICALLY, that AIPLA favors that any legislative action to implement the PLT that allows for the restoration of a priority claim for an application filed after 12, but before 14, months of the filing date of another application for which priority is desired to be claimed require that the delay in filing the priority claim be unintentional; and

SPECIFICALLY, that AIPLA opposes any amendment to Section 122(b)(2)(B)(iii) of Title 35, United States Code, which would remove the existing right of an applicant to avoid the abandonment of an application where it could be shown, to the satisfaction of the Director, that the delay in filing a Notice of Foreign Filing after a non-publication request has been entered was unintentional.

FURTHER RESOLVED, that AIPLA favors the clarification and streamlining of formal procedures in respect of recordation of rights in intellectual property consistent with the intent of the PLT to make such procedures more cost effective, consistent and simple; and SPECIFICALLY, that AIPLA favors that any legislative action to implement the PLT include appropriate amendments to 35 USC 261 to make explicit that the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office (USPTO) is authorized to record licenses and security interests in patents and patent applications in accordance with Article 14 of the PLT.

(Board of Directors Meeting – July 10, 2008.)

705-14 Industry Trilateral Global Application Format

RESOLVED, that the American Intellectual Property Law Association (AIPLA) favors, in principle, the implementation of the Industry Trilateral Global Application Format, and

SPECIFICALLY, that AIPLA favors legislative action, consistent with the Industry Trilateral proposal for a Global Application Format that would allow application cross-reference and federal funding legends to be contained, at the Applicant's option, within an application data sheet or within the specification; and

SPECIFICALLY, that AIPLA favors legislative and regulatory action, consistent with the Industry Trilateral proposal for a Global Application Format that would permit the use of reference characters in the claims and abstract of an original application filing, yet preserve the estoppel effect of post filing activity in connection with the interpretation of claims that include reference characters, and therefore, should provide a legislative and regulatory prohibition against any estoppels based solely on the inclusion of reference characters in the abstract and claims of an application.

(Board of Directors Meeting – September 19, 2008.)

The Board adopted the following proposed Resolution on Patent Law Treaty (PLT) Implementation Legislation (proposed additional language underlined):

35 U.S.C. 261 Ownership; assignment:

Subject to the provisions of this title, patents shall have the attributes of personal property. The Patent and Trademark Office shall maintain a register of interests in applications for patents and patents and shall record any document related thereto upon request, and may require a fee therefor.

Applications for patent, patents, or any interest therein, shall be assignable in law by an instrument in writing. The applicant, patentee, or his assigns or legal representatives may in like manner grant and convey an exclusive right under his application for patent, or patents, to the whole or any specified part of the United States.

A certificate of acknowledgment under the hand and official seal of a person authorized to administer oaths within the United States, or, in a foreign country, of a diplomatic or consular officer of the United States or an officer authorized to administer oaths whose authority is proved by a certificate of a diplomatic or consular officer of the United States, or apostille of an official designated by a foreign country which, by treaty or convention, accords like effect to apostilles of designated officials in the United States, shall be prima facie evidence of the execution of an assignment, grant, or conveyance of a patent or application for patent.

An interest that constitutes an assignment, grant, or conveyance shall be void as against any subsequent purchaser or mortgagee for a valuable consideration, without notice, unless it is recorded in the Patent and Trademark Office within three months from its date or prior to the date of such subsequent purchase or mortgage.

9. A review of the Annual Budget for the current Fiscal Year will be conducted with the new President by the Executive Director shortly after the Annual Meeting to allow the new President to assess whether an amendment to the Annual Budget needs be made in view of any changed circumstances or priorities accompanying that President’s and/or Board’s Term.

(Board of Directors Meeting – May 13, 2009.)

810-16

AIPLA Quarterly Journal

RESOLVED, that the Association should pursue a more formal relationship with The George Washington University Law School and the Executive Committee is authorized to enter into a Memorandum of Understanding that is generally in accordance with the terms outlined in Section II. A of [the] memorandum.

Joan [Schaffner] consulted with the Dean of GW, after the initial conference call, and she summarized her discussion in an email (expanded upon in the subsequent conference call). The email is as follows:

“Summary of the primary components of the AIPLA/GW relationship in light of our current arrangement and GW's arrangement with outside entity journals housed at GW, including the FCBJ.

“Relationship:

“There would be formal recognition of the association between the AIPLA QJ and GW Law, a top tier law school with an elite IP program, via 5-year, renewable MOU.

“There would be two GW faculty associated with the journal--the EIC, a full-time GW faculty member to be selected by the AIPLA Board, currently Joan Schaffner, and the Associate Dean of the IP program, currently John Whealan. (This will provide additional continuity of GW leadership and support for the journal.) The AIPLA Board would continue to have ultimate editorial control over the Journal.

“Financial Contribution:

“AIPLA currently budgets ~9,500 per year to cover a typical ~6,000–7,000 per year in expenses facing the staff of the AIPLA QJ (materials, IT expenses, staff party, and other miscellaneous expenses). The spare budget helps also cover for unanticipated capital expenses (e.g., computers) if they arise. GW staff has submitted a budget of approximately 5000 per year for expenses associated with Journal operations at GW. GW will assume expenses for the Journal as detailed in the itemized staff budget.

Details of the expenses typically budgeted for will be provided for formal agreement. Otherwise all other financial matters remain the same (AIPLA would continue to pay for printing, postage, etc., and would continue to receive proceeds from electronic redistribution etc.).

“Marking:

“Appearance of Journal/Articles: The cover will remain the same except that a University/Law School logo will also appear on the front cover, and the current student masthead will include reference to the GW Law School.

“Letterhead and other “branding” issues: AIPLA QJ letterhead will include University/Law School logo and all other references to AIPLA QJ (e.g. web site reference, articles as published on Westlaw, etc.) will additionally include either reference to the GW Law School or University/Law School logo, as appropriate.

“Staffing and the National Staff Competition:

“The AIPLA QJ would draw its student staff exclusively from GW Law Students and the National Competition for Staff positions would be stopped to be replaced by a well-publicized opportunity for at least AIPLA Law Student members to submit articles for consideration for inclusion in a new Student Notes Section of the Journal.

“Notes Section:

“There would be a creation of a Student Notes Section of AIPLA QJ with a normal minimum of two notes per journal issue. Publication in this section would be open to all students who are either GW student journal staff members or AIPLA law student members. The Editorial Review Board would have final input on the decision on which Notes to select for publication. The winning paper from an AIPLA supported student writing competition may also be included in this section at the request of the AIPLA [Editorial] Board. The current volume page limit will be increased to accommodate the addition of note publication.

“Symposium:

“GW would also be open to considering possible collaboration (perhaps bi-annually) on a symposium at GW with corresponding symposium issue of the journal (if this would be of interest to AIPLA). The costs associated with such symposia would be shared by AIPLA and GW. The details of which would be negotiated with each symposium organized.

“All other parameters remain essentially the same as current practices.”

RESOLVED, that the Association discontinue the use of a National Competition for the selection of the AIPLA Quarterly Journal's staff.

RESOLVED, that the Association authorize the adoption of a dedicated section in the AIPLA Quarterly Journal for publication of notes and comments written by Student [Affiliate] Members of AIPLA and student members of the AIPLA Quarterly Journal staff.

820-02Public Relations – AIPLA NamePolicy on the Use of AIPLA's Name/Co-sponsorship by AIPLA*

1. The use of AIPLA's name in connection with any event, product or service of others and AIPLA's being a co-sponsor or listed as a co-sponsor, of events with others, shall be at the sole discretion of AIPLA and shall be subject to the express authorization of the Executive Committee.
2. At least the following considerations shall be taken into account in determining whether the AIPLA will co-sponsor or authorize its name to be used with, any event, product or service:
 - a. the extent to which authorization will advance the goals of AIPLA, and
 - b. the degree and extent of risk of financial liability if the event, product or service should incur a financial loss.
3. When AIPLA, consistent with the above, agrees to co-sponsor or be listed as a co-sponsor of any event, product or service, AIPLA may allow use of its mailing list in connection therewith. The Executive Director shall determine if a fee is to be charged and, if so, the amount of the fee.

AIPLA DIVERSITY STATEMENT

Our mission at AIPLA is to lead and serve a diverse IP community by enhancing knowledge and shaping the future of IP law.

AIPLA believes that diversity among its membership is essential to our ability to accomplish this mission. Diversity embodies all those differences that make us unique individuals and includes people of different race, ethnicity, nationality, culture, sexual orientation, gender, religion, age, practice area, and physical ability, as well as people of diverse opinions, perspectives, ideas, and thinking. Because diversity and individual uniqueness brings creativity and vitality to an organization, we recognize the importance of diversity to AIPLA. We are, therefore, committed to providing an environment of fairness and equitable treatment. Our goal is to effectively serve AIPLA members from all backgrounds, to encourage the professional growth of all members, and to embrace and celebrate the diversity of our membership.

To that end, AIPLA will continue to identify, and look for ways to reduce or eliminate, barriers to under-represented groups and will continue to look for ways to expand access to leadership opportunities within the organization in an effort to further strengthen our diversity. AIPLA, by and through its Officers, Directors, and Committee leaders, will encourage participation by qualified members of under-represented groups at all levels of the Association.

(Board of Directors Meeting – May 13, 2009.)

The Board of Directors adopted a lobbying policy regarding Amicus Committee matters in the form of a letter to be sent out to those who discuss amicus brief participation with an Amicus Committee member or a Board Member.

The letter states:

Thank you for your letter/telephone call regarding AIPLA's consideration of amicus brief participation. I want to identify for you AIPLA's guidelines for certain communications with members of the Amicus Committee or Board of Directors regarding AIPLA's position in an amicus brief.

The Board and Amicus Committee want to encourage open communication between the membership of AIPLA and members of the Board and committees. At the same time, we want to avoid both any impropriety and, of course, any appearance of impropriety. Thus, when an unsolicited communication relating to an AIPLA amicus brief position or the content of an AIPLA amicus brief is made by or on behalf of a party to a case under consideration for amicus participation, or a third party with a substantial interest in the case, that communication ordinarily should:

- 1) be submitted in writing to the Amicus Committee Chair (for distribution by the chair to the Committee members and Board) and by the submitter to counsel for all parties to the case; and
- 2) disclose the nature of the submitter's interest in the case, identifying for whom, if anyone, the submission is being made, and disclosing whether any compensation is being received for making the submission.

Time permitting (deadlines are usually tight in amicus matters), the Amicus Committee and Board will do its best to consider all such communications. We welcome and appreciate them.

Thank you for understanding AIPLA's need to assure openness and full disclosure in our amicus brief deliberations. In the meantime, please call me if you have any questions.

Very truly yours,

(Board of Directors Meeting – September 6, 1996.
Retained by Board of Directors – January 24, 2007.)

Amicus Brief Policy

The Board of Directors decided that all briefs will list first the Association and the name of the President. Following that, the principal author will be listed as “counsel of record.” At the discretion of the principal author, others who made significant contributions to the brief will be listed as “of counsel.”

(Board of Directors Meeting – October 18, 1997.

Amended and retained by Board of Directors – January 23, 2008.)

Amicus Participation Conflict Guidelines and Amicus Brief Footnote

1. The principal focus should be on maintaining the credibility of the AIPLA to the courts.
2. Promptly upon learning that the AIPLA Amicus Committee (“Committee”) or the Board, as the case may be, intends to consider whether to participate as an amicus in a matter, each member of the Committee and the Board shall undertake reasonable inquiry to determine whether the member may need to recuse himself from consideration of a brief. A member shall recuse himself if he or his firm represents a party to the matter to be considered in that matter. A member shall consider recusing himself if:
(a) he or anyone associated with the member in a firm legally represents in any matter any party to the matter to be considered; or (b) his employer or any affiliated company or organization is related to any party to the matter to be considered as a parent, affiliate, or subsidiary company or in a joint venture. The member may voluntarily recuse himself, and shall recuse himself if the Board or Committee determines that to be appropriate under paragraphs 3 or 4. Recusal means that such member shall not be present, either in person or otherwise, during either the discussion or voting on such matter, and, further, means that such member shall not actively seek to influence any other member’s vote on that matter.
3. A member in doubt about recusing himself may present to the Board or Committee a statement of all facts known to the member that would be pertinent to a determination by the Board or Committee with regard to whether the member should be recused and shall recuse himself if the Board or Committee after full deliberation determines that to be appropriate.
4. (a) If any facts are known to a Board or Committee member that might, in the judgment of that member, create a conflict of interest, an appearance of a conflict of interest, or in any other way adversely affect the credibility of AIPLA, that member shall disclose those facts to the Board or Committee, as the case may be, to the extent permitted consistent with the member’s professional responsibility. If any Board or Committee member on behalf of another entity (including but not limited to an individual, commercial or not-for-profit enterprise, bar association, trade association, or NGO) has (i) substantive involvement in the development of any position for that entity in an actual or potential amicus submission, or (ii) a role in the preparation or approval of any such submission for the entity, then that member shall disclose those facts to the Board or Committee, as the case may be, to the extent permitted consistent with the member’s professional responsibility.

(b) Upon receipt of a disclosure under subsection (a), the Board or the Committee, as the case may be, then shall decide by majority vote whether or not the member shall be recused or, if the vote had already occurred, whether any re-vote is necessary. Except for communications made to the entire Board or Committee, the member shall recuse himself from consideration of whether recusal or re-vote is necessary. If the member concludes that no disclosure is permissible consistent with the member's professional responsibilities to the client, then the member shall recuse himself.

5. If a member believes that another member may have failed to disclose a representation or other facts required to be disclosed by these rules, that member shall so inform the President or Chair. If a member believes that the President or Chair has failed to disclose such matters, the member shall advise the Committee or Board as a whole.
6. If a member learns at a time before the brief is filed that he should have recused himself, he shall promptly so advise the Chair or President who shall decide whether or not a re-vote is necessary after advising the Committee or Board of the relationship.

The Board recommends that all briefs state in a footnote:

Pursuant to Supreme Court Rule 37.6, the Association states that this brief was not authored in whole or in part by counsel to a party, and that no monetary contribution to the preparation or submission of this brief was made by any person or entity other than the Association and its counsel. Specifically, after reasonable investigation, AIPLA believes that (i) no member of its Board or Amicus Committee who voted to file this brief, or any attorney in the law firm or corporation of such a member, represents a party to this litigation in this matter, (ii) no representative of any party to this litigation in this matter participated in the authorship of this brief, and (iii) no one other than AIPLA, or its members who authored this brief and their law firms or employers, made a monetary contribution to the preparation or submission of this brief.

(Board of Directors Meeting – March 14, 2002.

Revised by Board of Directors – February 2 and 4, 2006; December 12, 2012; and May 17, 2014.)

830-36

Amicus Committee Policy and Procedures

RESOLVED, that the Board of Directors adopts the following procedures for the Amicus Committee and for determining when the Association will file an amicus brief:

1. Foreign Affiliate Members are not eligible for membership on the Amicus Committee.
2. The Amicus Committee is charged with initial consideration of requests to review cases for possible amicus brief participation. As a result, all requests for the filing of amicus briefs are to be directed to the Chair of the Amicus Committee. The Chair of the Committee, after consultation with the Vice Chair, or the Board Liaison if one of them has a conflict, may elect not to distribute the materials to the Committee members if he or she believes the case is so inappropriate for consideration as not to require the investment of the time of the members of the Amicus Committee and Board. Any counsel taking exception to a ruling by the Chair of the Amicus Committee may contact the AIPLA President for reconsideration.

3. In responding to requests for the filing of amicus briefs, the Chair of the Amicus Committee is to provide written information to counsel for the parties to advise them of its operating procedures and policies, as well as those of the Association. Counsel for the parties should be particularly informed that:
 - a. The fact that AIPLA is considering whether to file a brief is not to be taken as suggesting that AIPLA believes that the Court has made an error, or that AIPLA will eventually decide to file a brief.
 - b. If the Amicus Committee does not recommend the filing of a brief, or if the AIPLA Board decides not to file a brief, such a decision is not to be taken as a position by AIPLA on the issues in the case in question, and AIPLA would consider it inappropriate for a party to attach any particular significance to such action by AIPLA in any brief or argument to a court.
 - c. Once a case is considered by AIPLA, AIPLA retains total control over its position in the case, even if that position might be inconsistent or adverse to the position of the party who brought the case to AIPLA's attention. Consequently, any party who brings a case to the attention of AIPLA may not "withdraw" the case from consideration if such party does not agree with any position taken by AIPLA.
4. The operating procedures and policies of the Amicus Committee must comply with the Bylaws of the Association and any Past Actions of the Board of Directors which are still in effect. However, subject to approval of the Board, the Amicus Committee may establish such other procedures, policies and materials that are reasonably necessary for it to carry out its work.
5. After the materials are distributed to the Committee members, they may meet and discuss the case during the next regularly scheduled meeting of AIPLA. If time does not permit a face-to-face meeting, a vote will be taken by mail or email on whether each Committee member believes AIPLA should file a brief.
6. In cases in which the AIPLA Amicus Committee reaches a consensus that a brief should be filed, the Committee will make an appropriate recommendation to the Board of Directors. The Board then will consider this recommendation at its next meeting, or if time does not permit, by mail or e-mail, or in an emergency situation, through its Executive Committee or by telephone conference call.
7. A two-thirds vote of the Board of Directors voting is necessary to approve filing of any amicus brief on behalf of the Association.

(Board of Directors Meeting – November 1, 2003; Retained by Board of Directors – February 1, 2014.)

900-05Awards

RESOLVED, that the American Intellectual Property Law Association adopts the following guidelines for the granting of AIPLA Awards:

1. The Awards Committee should solicit input from the President on nominations for individuals to be considered for the President's Outstanding Service Award. After completing its deliberation, the Awards Committee should privately propose at least three individuals to the President for his or her consideration. Board approval of the individual selected for the President's Outstanding Service Award is not required, although it is understood that a President may choose to consult with the Board on the selection.
2. Current members of the Board of Directors and Executive Committee are not eligible to be considered for any award. Past Presidents of AIPLA are eligible for the President's Outstanding Service Award, but only for service and contributions made after their term of office.
3. Not more than one President's Outstanding Service Award and one Board's Excellence Award should be presented each year in the absence of special circumstances.
4. The Awards Committee should present its recommendations to the Board for the Board's Excellence Award at the Spring Meeting (or at the latest, the July Board Meeting).
5. Conflicts
 - An Awards Committee member may not nominate nor participate in the consideration of a grant of an award to a member or employee of his or her firm or company.
 - A member of the Awards Committee may nominate and vote for an individual with which that member has a business relationship, but should disclose that relationship.
6. The Awards Committee should make efforts to tailor the physical award given, when possible, to reflect the specific contribution of the awardees. It is the consensus of the Committee that, in the long term, it would be beneficial for the form of the President's Outstanding Service Award and the Board's Excellence Award to be standardized, in order to add to the prestige and recognition of the award within the IP community. On a longer term basis, the Committee will begin work to standardize the physical awards for each category to reflect significance and importance of the awards.
7. The Awards Committee should emphasize the President's Outstanding Service Award is presented for service to or within AIPLA, while the Board's Excellence Award focuses on the impact to the larger intellectual property community.
8. The Awards Committee should solicit nominations of individuals for the AIPLA Project Award from Committee Chairs as well as from the Board and Executive Committee.
9. The Awards Committee shall solicit nominations for the Committee of the Year Award from the Board and Executive Committee.

10. The Committee of the Year Award shall be presented to the AIPLA committee, including any appointed or special committee, which has demonstrated extraordinary service to the organization, its members, and/or to the IP community. It shall be awarded in recognition of a committee's efforts and excellence in activities and communications, judged with reference to the Strategic Plan and the mission of the committee. The Committee of the Year Award typically shall be given to only one committee each year, but the Awards Committee can choose more, if appropriate. The Committee of the Year Award typically shall be presented to the committee's leadership who led the committee during the year for which the Award is being given.
